Finding Books, Films, etc.

Once you've mined OBIS and the OhioLINK Library Catalog for materials, try searching WorldCat, which provides references to books and other materials held by libraries worldwide.

If you identify materials in WorldCat that are not listed in OBIS or OhioLINK, you may request them through the Interlibrary Loan service.

HRAF - Human Relations Area Files

---

Human Relations Area Files, Inc. at Yale University collects publications on cultures of the world -- books, manuscripts, journal articles, and dissertations by anthropologists, sociologists, other social scientists, travelers, and missionaries, and indexes them at the paragraph level using a specially developed system of subject codes (aka the Outline of Cultural Materials or OCM).

Oberlin has HRAF in two formats: microfiche and eHRAF: World Cultures, a full text database.

To determine which files are available in fiche consult the Outline of World Cultures handbook on top the microfiche cabinet - there is a list of files tucked inside the front cover.

Finding Articles, Essays, etc. Using Databases

---

Access all databases via the Library web site.

- Anthropology Plus
  - Largest and most comprehensive source for anthropology
  - Produced from collections at Harvard and the Royal Anthropological Institute - leads to some duplication of records
  - Coverage goes back to early 19th century publications
- Abstracts in Anthropology (2001 - )
  - Covers fewer journals and less time but provides summaries
- AnthroSource
  - Access to publications produced by the American Anthropological Association
